What is this course about?

This course is compulsory for the French Immersion program as it is the study of the language itself. In this course, we will be studying the four strands of the language: speaking, listening, reading and writing. Students will learn to speak in a variety of different situations and, will learn more about the cultural richness of the Francophonie through poetry, novels and plays.

What will I be doing in class?

- Speaking
It is usually very fun group activities that can be humorous stories of real-life situations, fun games or even just re-playing a segment of a play.
speaking in French with peers/teacher is required and is used as an assessment of spontaneous speaking.

- Listening
a variety of formal-style listening activities pulled from the DELF levels appropriate for grade 12 (B1 to B2) study of plays adapted into movies to hear various accents.

- Reading
We study some major authors but with very elementary writing styles such as Camus, Anouilh, Colette, Sartre and more.

- Writing
We revisit the major grammatical and syntactical rules to help repair errors common to FSL students.
writing is improved within writing context. It can be completed as comprehension to reading and creative writing.
Students will be offered a chance to write a short play as their final unit assignment.

Course Assessments

We usually have quizzes and tests for listening, writing and reading. The format is often a Google form with access to dictionaries depending on the strand. Speaking is assessed through communication activities, students will be given the time to prepare of course. Success criteria always accompany every evaluation.
